Comment
Of The DaySHOWING THE FLAG

IT is a matter of considerable pride to Hongkong people to know that in the diverse range of manufacture claimed by the Colony, shipbuilding should be one of the major industries. And the yards at Tai-koo are, outside Japan, probably the biggest in Asia. From her slips have come vessels of 9,000 gross registered tons. The third of China Navigation's 'K' class freighters was launched on Monday and it is pleasing to all at Tai-koo that a fourth has now been ordered.

But for this the outlook would have been gloomy. The times are difficult for shipping companies now, as Mr Bell told guests at the launching. The volume of new building has declined all over the world. Orders have been cancelled. Competition is fierce. The rate at which old ships are being scrapped—the activity in Hongkong's dismantling yards is a good barometer—is the clearest indication of the slump. Nor is there a pick-up in sight.

IT is all the more disturbing that new yards should be established at this time in Malta and that its proprietors are hoping to attract business from Hongkong. However the Bailey docks will be mainly concerned with repair work, and although there was a slight fall in the amount of repairs done in Hongkong last year there is less concern for the future of this section of the industry than for the major building yards.

It is the same story the world over. The contraction experienced by the British shipbuilding industry has been a source of constant alarm in recent years, and this includes not only the general decline in new building but the loss of orders to continental firms. The tendency among the small shipping companies of Hongkong and other parts of Asia is to buy old ships rather than build new ones. The clearest illustration of this came from Indonesia after it severed commercial ties with the Netherlands.

FORTUNATELY the Colony has been compensated in the loss of orders for big ships by a steady demand for smaller vessels for harbour and coastal work, such as lighters, fireboats, pilot ships and cargo boats which have kept some 30 firms and more than 10,000 workers busily employed in the past year. It looks as if it is with these orders that Hongkong will have to be increasingly content for the foreseeable future.

With the facilities that are available and the standards Hongkong is known for the local industry should have no difficulty getting its fair share of repair and maintenance business from both local and overseas shipping companies.

But to advertise the capabilities of our building yards, could not Tai-koo and China Navigation consider offering one of their newest freighters for a three months chartered trade promotion cruise, carrying an exhibition of Colony-made goods and a delegation of manufacturers and traders to East Africa, India, Pakistan, Burma and Australia. The prestige to be gained from such a mission in a Hongkong-built ship would be tremendous.

BEGAN ITS ORBIT 4,375 MILES FROM THE MOON
LUNIK SEES THE OTHER SIDEReaches Peak
Then Heads
Toward Earth

Moscow, Oct. 7.

Russia's Lunik III has passed behind the far side of the moon, never before seen by man, and apparently is heading back toward earth after reaching the peak of its outer loop, it was announced today.

There still was no indication whether the instrument-laden rocket had taken any photographs of the moon's hidden face.

Tass said the rocket came within 4,375 miles of the moon at 5:10 p.m. Moscow time yesterday, its nearest approach in circling a giant that eventually would bring it back toward earth.

Reached Peak

The Lunik "continued its flight around the moon," Tass said.

Prof. M. S. Yarov-Yarovoy, rocket section chief at Moscow's Sternberg Astronomical Institute, said the rocket reached the peak of its outward loop shortly after midnight yesterday. He said the rocket then headed toward earth.

Tass said earlier that the measuring instruments, solar batteries and chemical sources of energy supply were operating normally.

"The rocket is moving strictly along the present orbit," said Tass.

The rocket chief explained that the rocket might be making a complete turn around the moon as the latter probably would move out of the rocket's path before then, adds the Moscow report.

New Moon

Scientists noted that there is a "new moon" at this moment and that the "unknown face" which so much intrigues astronomers is, therefore, brilliantly lit by the sun.

This was without doubt the best possible time to take pictures of the moon, and it was considered unlikely that Soviet scientists had been able to resist such a temptation.

Excellent photos can now also be taken of the earth, since earth can be seen in its entirety from the moon.

It was still difficult to say with any certainty how this adventure would end. The communique published on October 4 by the Soviet state radio said the rocket after turning around the moon, the missile "will then pass near the earth."

Another Satellite

A very likely possibility was that Lunik III would become another earth satellite with a giant orbit, set so that the missile could have periodic encounters with the moon.

According to information now available, such encounters could take place every month, with the missile making two great space eclipses in between without meeting the moon.

Washington, Oct. 6. Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled today that the United States could not deport two Chinese aliens to Formosa because it was not a sovereign country.

Other court decisions prevent deportations to China, and lawyers said the new ruling virtually would halt deportation of Chinese nationals by the U.S.

Judge Holtzoff asked Mr. Eli Mauer, the State Department's assistant legal adviser for Far Eastern Affairs, as saying that while the United States recognizes the Republic of China's "authority" over Formosa, the island never has

It was believed, however, that after some time the moon's gravitational pull would knock the missile's orbit askew, with the missile then possibly making a plunge into the moon, as had its recent predecessor. To prevent this, the missile would need a propulsion system capable of correcting any deviations that would arise.—UPI & AFP.

Clash In Berlin
Over Flag

Berlin, Oct. 6.

West Berlin police clashed tonight with hundreds of East Berlin railway employees over the German democratic republic's new hammer and sickle flag.

Six policemen were injured, two of them seriously. The violence erupted as police moved to take down the new flags from a number of railway stations in the West sector but run by personnel from the East sector.

The East Berliners had hoisted the flags.

The police met no opposition in a number of stations but at Schoeneberg, Tempelhof and Grunewald hundreds of angry railway workers drove them back.

The police action was undertaken in the words of an official "to preserve public order" and forestall possible public reaction. It was suspended.

The action was 70 per cent successful; 70 of some 100 flags being removed.—AFP.

Churchill To Vote By Post

London, Oct. 6.

For the first time in his life, Sir Winston Churchill is voting by post in a general election. He is staying at Chartwell, his country home in the south of England, and appears on the Westernham electoral roll.

But as he intends to spend the whole of Election Day in his Woodford, Essex, constituency, he qualifies as a postal voter.—China Mail Special.

Formosa Ruled 'Not A Country'
In Deportation Case

Washington, Oct. 6. Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled today that the United States could not deport two Chinese aliens to Formosa because it was not a sovereign country.

Other court decisions prevent deportations to China, and lawyers said the new ruling virtually would halt deportation of Chinese nationals by the U.S.

Judge Holtzoff asked Mr. Eli Mauer, the State Department's assistant legal adviser for Far Eastern Affairs, as saying that while the United States recognizes the Republic of China's "authority" over Formosa, the island never has become "a country" under International Law. U.S. immigration laws allow a person to be deported only to "a country."

The judge ruled in the cases of Cheng Fu-sheng and Lin Fu-mei, both of San Francisco. They came here in 1952 and 1953 as Chinese Nationalist Air Force officers for military training. They defected from the Nationalist Government and decided to stay. The immigration service moved to deport them.

Japan surrendered the island of Formosa to President Chiang Kai-shek and, in the 1953 peace treaty, renounced all claims to it.

But according to Mr. Mauer and an article in the State Department bulletin, there never was a "formal transfer" of sovereignty over the island to the Republic of China. Judge Holtzoff said he was bound by this opinion of the State Department.

The judge said he was not unmindful of the fact that his ruling led "to a temporary impasse" but he said Congress could change the immigration laws back to the wording that prevailed before 1952—authorizing deportation to "a foreign country." The government was expected to appeal the decision.—UPI.

SIAMESE TWINS
SEPARATED
IN 5-HOUR
OPERATION

Portland, Oct. 6.

Three-year-old Jeannette Kim and Donett Linn Stubbsfield, born Siamese twins, were separated by surgeons today and entered a crucial 48-hour recovery period.

Four surgeons, assisted by more than a dozen other technicians, cut the babies apart in a five-hour operation at the University of Oregon medical school hospital where they had been under observation since the day after they were born.

A hospital spokesman said "it is too early to predict the eventual outcome," but added that the babies stood the operation well.

"They are breathing well, their colour is good, and their general condition is stable," he said.

One of the surgeons who performed the operation said all goes well during the next two days the girls can be taken home in about three weeks.

BEAUTIFUL GIRLS

The twins, described by one of the doctors as "beautiful little girls," were extensively joined by their breast bones and vertebrae.

The doctors said the babies now have complete sets of functioning organs and indicated they should survive barring complications. A major danger, they said, was possible breathing difficulty caused by the tight abdominal closures.

Further surgery will be necessary later to correct hernias, but this may not be done for several years.—UPI.

Croquet Knee

New York, Oct. 6.

Motion picture producer Samuel Goldwyn was reported in "excellent condition" at Columbia-Presbyterian medical center today after surgery to remove a section of a cartilage from his right knee. He twisted his knee playing croquet several months ago.—UPI.

Monty Described As
'Child In Politics'

Durham, Oct. 6.

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery — former Allied Deputy Supreme Commander in Europe — who last night said that Labour voters should be put away in lunatic asylums, was tonight described by his former boss as a "complete child in politics."

This description came from Mr. Emanuel Shinwell, one time Labour Secretary for War and Minister of Defence. "I cannot imagine anything more foolish than to say that anybody who votes Labour ought to be put in a lunatic asylum," he added.

"That is an insult not only to 12 million Labour electors but to thousands of ex-servicemen who fought alongside Lord Montgomery in the war, and if I may say so, helped to gain him his great reputation."

"I would also like to remind him and the general public that Lord Montgomery was a Chief of the Imperial General Staff — top military job in Britain — when a Labour Government was in office and, so far as I am aware, he never complained about the treatment accorded him by that government."

"Fortunately, it is most unlikely that any person in the country will be influenced by the Field Marshal, in spite of his great reputation, when it comes to making a decision on Thursday for whom they shall vote."—Reuter.

MOSCOW, PEKING DIFFER ON MEANS TO SETTLE WORLD PROBLEMSHerter's Statement At Press Conference

Washington, Oct. 6.

Mr. Christian Herter, the Secretary of State, told his press conference today that there were indications that the Soviet Government and China were taking rather different lines on the question of settling international problems by peaceful means rather than by force.

Mr. Herter said he formed this impression following Mr. Khrushchev's visit to Peking.

However, Mr. Herter told a news conference that as long as the Soviet Union proclaimed itself the leader of the Communist bloc, the United States would consider Moscow to a certain degree responsible for the actions of other Communist nations.

Pressed to elaborate, Mr. Herter said he was referring to developments in Laos, Formosa and Korea.

The U.S. Secretary of State denied that "he was predicting a major rift between the Soviet Union and Peking."

In answer to another question, Mr. Herter stated that he could see no apparent sign of relaxation of tension between Peking and the United States.

CHARGE

He charged that Chinese leaders continued to browbeat Taiwan and to attack what they termed the aggressive, imperialist policies of the United States.

The Secretary of State added that it was not in the national interest of the United States at this time to recognize the Peking Government.

Mr. Herter admitted that Mr. Khrushchev during his Peking visit had made an eloquent plea for peace and the peaceful settlement of international problems.

But he said that Mr. Khrushchev was spending for his own government and not for the government of Peking.

To judge the official attitude of China, Mr. Herter said a statement from Mr. Mao Tse-tung was essential. But he said Mr. Mao had remained silent throughout Mr. Khrushchev's visit to Peking and this would appear to indicate some divergence in Soviet and Chinese foreign policies.—Reuter and AFP. Stars Foretell
A Labour Win

Lisbon, Oct. 7.

A Portuguese astrologer who forecast that rockets would reach the orbit of the moon this year has predicted that the Labour Party will win the British General Election on October 8.

The astrologer, Raul Lapa, who calls himself "Horus," made his forecast in an interview with the Lisbon newspaper "O Seculo" which, when publishing it, drew attention to the accuracy of the astrologer's prediction, published in the Canadian weekly "Star Magazine" of Toronto, that rockets would reach the orbit of the moon in 1959, but not man.

Landing Of A 400lb Shark Is No Fish Story

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

A 10-pound slice of freshly-speared fish hooked what is believed to be the biggest-ever shark caught in Hongkong waters.

Underwater fisherman Emil Landau fought with a 400-pound-plus man-eating shark on Sunday with a rod and line for four hours in a real fisherman's duel before he and his friends were able to gaff the monster and haul it aboard a boat.

"The shark was impossible to gaff from our boat so the boat boys hooked him from a dinghy and we hauled him in from there. The 10-foot-long shark was then hauled up the mast and we began to photograph it."

"As it was hauled on board we cut its gills to bleed it to death and when it was hauled up the mast it looked pretty dead."

BROKE ROPE

"But after the photographs were taken, it suddenly shook itself and broke the rope. Luckily we also had it tied by the tail so no damage was done."

The shark was first seen earlier that afternoon when Mr. Landau and some of his friends were underwater fishing. They spotted a number of black-robed and hammer-head sharks in the vicinity, and choosing discretion, slipped back on board their boat.

Then out came the rods and lines. In no time the big hooks were gone. Mr. Landau, using two small mackerel hooks, a 60-pound breaking strain nylon line and a No. 10 reel, with a 10-pound slab of green wrasse as bait, hooked the big black-nose.

600 YARD LINE

"At one stage," Mr. Landau said, "I had nearly 600 yards of line out."

Once the catch had been photographed, it was shared out among the boat boys, but not before restaurateur Landau had cut off the fins.

They are now being dried in the PG, and Mr. Landau says his cook will soon be making shark's fin soup.

There was no way of weighing his catch on board the boat, but Mr. Landau estimated the shark to weigh well over 400 pounds — his biggest personal catch.

A marine biologist at Hongkong University said that from the picture, it looked as if it might be a man-eater.

With a gaff hook through its mouth, the 400-lb monster caught by Mr. Emil Landau struggles on the deck after its capture.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

'LAY OFF'... the voice on

my phone at midnight when I got curious about this man—

BY RICHARD KILIAN

A BENIGN-LOOKING, bespectacled man, nattily dressed, with well-groomed grey hair, and carrying a briefcase, may soon try to enter England. The only thing which will make him stand out from any other prosperous Continental business man will be the pitch of his voice.

It carries the toughness and bite born of a lifetime in the whispering back alleys of crime. The man will carry an Italian passport. It will read: NAME: Salvatore Luciano. AGE: 59. OCCUPATION: Hospital equipment dealer. BIRTH-PLACE: Lercara Friddi, Sicily.

Innocent enough? Yet the chances are immigration authorities will not let him enter England.

For behind the polish of respectability is one of the worst criminals of the century—Lucky Luciano.

For the past 13 years this quiet man, still considered to be the king-pin in the international vice trade, has been trying to get back to the English-speaking world.

TWO WORDS

At one point during my research for this article the telephone rang at my home just after midnight. I had been fruitlessly hunting Luciano in his plush Naples flat, his favourite haunts in Palermo. The voice said two words: "Lay off." But in those two words were all the undertones of Hell's Kitchen and Soho. Then once more: "Lay off."

I checked the call. It came from Palermo, where the "mafia"—or "Black Hand"—Society has its headquarters.

Despite enormous pressure during the past 18 years by heavy-handed American detectives, Italian police have not been able to pin, even the slightest charge on Luciano.

And Lucky does not lack money. He gets regular bank drafts from America to Naples. The Italian police have tried to find out who from and, failed. "I get occasional funds from dead friends in the States," explains Lucky.

He has been telling his friends: "I want to spend a long holiday in Spain. Then go to Paris and then London. I've got lots of British. Lucky may be heading your way. And who can say, if the sting has been taken out of this scorpion?"

NEW YORK—The average crew of atom-powered submarines may soon be slashed from 100 to 12. Now automatic control system being developed—name "SUBIC"—will steer course, spot enemy aircraft or obstacles, and keep the sub. interior comfortable.

TORONTO — A Canadian building company has wired a challenge to Khrushchev for Canadian and Russian teams to build model houses. The Consolidated Building Corporation suggests a Canadian team should go to Moscow; a Russian one to Canada. "We want to take you up on the 'Let's compete at all levels' offer," said the wire.

NEW YORK—Next trouble spot in the stormy Caribbean: Guatemala. A series of more than 30 terrorist bomb incidents there in the last few weeks are reported to be the curtain-raiser to an armed attempt to overthrow the Government of Conservative-Democrat President Miguel Ydigora before December congressional elections. Now suspected is Right-wing Nationalist Democratic Movement.

LOS ANGELES — U.S. Security men on the Khrushchev visit were puzzled by the smallness of Soviet bodyguards' revolvers. They appear to be about .25

Rome. calibre—in shoulder or hip holsters. U.S. nickname: "Bankers' Specialists."

THE BIG DOPE BOOM

DOPE peddlers throughout the world are looking forward to bigger supplies soon. Lebanon, which grows some of the world's lushest illegal marijuana, or hemp, will not destroy this year's crop.

The Lebanese Government has told an international anti-narcotics investigating committee that its security forces, who normally seek and destroy illegal crops, "have been too busy this year with other tasks."

A good hemp season in Lebanon can earn several million pounds for growers, smugglers and peddlers.

STORM WARNING

Washington. SERIOUS trouble is expected on the American economic front.

Already America's steel mills lie idle in the grip of a prolonged strike. Some East Coast ports are tied up by a stevedores' strike over wages.

All railroads are threatened by stoppages because the owners want employees to accept a 15 cents an hour wage cut to help balance the books. With America's exports slipping badly, the U.S. Government is deeply concerned about the gloomy labour picture.

BAGDAD, Iraq — To sell goods to Iraq have a picture of Iraqi Premier Kassem on every item. Import licences are being refused for many Western goods but the Government has issued permits for Swiss watches, wall clocks from China, and West German jewellery, provided every item bears a coloured picture of Kassem.

VANCOUVER — Police in Vancouver have had to give up training police dogs on volunteer policemen. The dogs now attack every policeman in sight.

JAPAN FOR SPACE

TOKYO — Expect Japan to muscle into outer space by 1962. Confident Japanese scientists are preparing to launch an earth satellite powered by a "Made in Japan" rocket.

The U.S. Government has blessed the project and invited the giant General Dynamics Corporation of America to give Japan advice which will help along the big shot.

The move will result in Red Chinese appeals to Khrushchev to help China launch her own satellite soon for reasons of Asiatic prestige.

Party Leaders' Final Appeals To The Nation CLOSING BROADCASTS ON HOME PROBLEMS

London, Oct. 6.

THE leaders of Britain's major political parties both concentrated on home issues tonight in their closing broadcasts to the nation.

EGGS PROBLEM IN ITALY

Genoa, Oct. 6.

Italian authorities served up a giant omelette of Argentine eggs, ink, lemon juice and red tape today to leave importers scratching their heads over what to do with millions of eggs they can't sell.

The importers moved some 15,000 crates of eggs from two ships to refrigerated warehouses, but customs officials still held them unpounded. And another 40,000 crates of eggs—millions in total—were already on their way here.

The authorities yesterday invoked a regulation that all eggs imported into Italy must be stamped with indelible ink so they cannot be sold as fresh Italian produce.

TEST

The test for indelibility under the regulation was a rubbing with a bit of cotton soaked in lemon juice.

When customs agents began rubbing eggs in the Argentine shipment, the ink came off. Further tests today showed more faulty stamping.

While importers argued that the eggs might spoil, customs men were adamant: No indelible marking, no sales.

The eggs' owners were appealing the decision of the port customs authorities, but in the meantime seemed to have only three alternatives:—Unrate the eggs and reship every one with indelible ink.

—Ship them all back to Argentina.

—Dump the whole omelette in Genoa harbour and write off the loss.

Either alternative seemed highly unprofitable. The situation at least provided port jockeys with a new riddle: Which came first, the eggs or the ink?—UPI.

Mr Selwyn Lloyd, had gone to Moscow in February.

The Prime Minister added: "We have not solved these matters yet. We have a long way to go, but I would say this: We are far better placed than we were. Then we were under an ultimatum."

"Now we can enter into these negotiations with free discussion, not under threat but in freedom."

Strong Majority

"I am not so vain or foolish as to think that I and my colleagues have any special qualifications for this task."

But what was needed was a government which was united with a strong majority in Parliament and able to speak for Britain as a whole. Mr Gaitskell recalled in his final radio broadcast Labour's plans for higher old age pensions and a bigger investment in education.

He declared: "If you want to wonder whether we can afford this cost will you ask yourself: How does talk of that kind really fit in with the story of prosperity today, and more prosperity tomorrow?"

"With a strong majority, we can certainly afford this cost."

"In my great industrial nation like ours the wealth of the country should be growing year by year as with the help of modern science—the real Aladdin's lamp—we produce more of what we need."

Can we really tolerate going on as we have been with other countries racing ahead with faster economic development and Britain left behind?

"It just won't do. It means an appalling lack of faith in Britain and in ourselves."

"In policy abroad it is the attitude that really counts and there is needed a modern attitude based on the recognition that slowly and patiently we must replace the old anarchy which has always led to war with a system of international law and order," Mr Gaitskell said.

Tragic Names

He spoke of "the tragic names of the last few years—Suez, Cyprus, India and Nyasaland," and declared "we have got to bring a fresh spirit."

"They do not reflect at all the kindly, tolerant, decent outlook of ordinary British folk."

"In a modern world they are dangerously far from the place that slowly and patiently we must replace the road to peace and understanding among all the peoples of the world,"—Reuters.

SOVIET SEEK SCIENCE MEETING

United Nations, Oct. 6.

Mr Vasily Kuznetsov, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, told the General Assembly today that his Government planned to propose "to convene under United Nations auspices an international conference of scientists on the exchange of experience in exploring outer space."

On Mr Khrushchev's disarmament proposals, presented in the Assembly on September 18, he said that the Soviet Union was not proposing to act on the principle of "all or nothing."

NUCLEAR TESTS

The Soviet Deputy Minister told the Assembly: "If the Western Powers do not now express their willingness to accept general and complete disarmament, the Soviet Government is ready, as before, to come to an agreement with other states on appropriate partial steps on disarmament and the strengthening of security."

Referring to the Geneva talks on the suspension of nuclear tests, Mr Kuznetsov said that his Government believed that there now existed "all prerequisites for concluding at last an agreement on this question in the near future."

In a speech which delegates said was more restrained than any other recently heard from a Soviet diplomat in the United Nations, Mr Kuznetsov criticised "certain quarters" who, he said, were seeking to hinder creation of a "business like atmosphere" here by bringing in the question of Tibet.—Reuters.

CEYLON IMPOSES CENSORSHIP ON THE PRESS

Colombo, Oct. 6.

The Government imposed censorship on the Ceylon press at midnight tonight.

A notice in the official Gazette said that among subjects covered by the censorship would be "matters relating to any proceedings or investigation conducted in connection with the death of the late Premier, Mr Solomon Bandaranaike, who was fatally shot four times by an assassin at his home here on September 25. He died in hospital the next day."

It would also cover "any matter suggesting or tending to suggest that any one or more persons named or were directly or indirectly concerned with the death."

TRIAL PUT OFF

A vast crowd waited in vain outside the Colombo magistrate's court earlier today to see Somarunga Thero, the Buddhist monk held in connection with the assassination, but the magistrate postponed the case until October 20 after Police said the monk was not yet fit enough to appear in court. The bullet wound, in the groin which he received from a sentry at Mr Bandaranaike's house was healing but he was still unable to move, the Police said.

Police exhibits, including a revolver said to have been used in the killing, spent bullets, robes and slippers, were sent to the Government analyst for examination and a report by October 20.

Police sources said preliminary inquiries in connection with the assassination were now complete. Somarunga Thero had been questioned several times in the prison hospital last week.

The censorship has also been imposed on matter bringing or tending to bring the Government into hatred or contempt, or to incite feelings of disaffection or hatred of the Government, giving information on acts of violence and breaches of the peace and meetings, processions or demonstrations, and matter relating to the discipline, condition or movement of the Armed Forces and Police.—Reuters.

It was reported from Bermuda recently that U.S. G-men are to come to the island to help with the search for the murderer of London secretary Dorothy Rawlinson, and possibly of two other Englishwomen found battered to death this year. Official confirmation of the report has not been given, but G-men have been called in to the island before. There are about 10,000 U.S. servicemen and their families in Bermuda. Police are shown searching for clues on the beach where Dorothy Rawlinson (inset) was found battered to death with rocks.—Express Photo.

Gross Sent To Gaol For Manslaughter

Los Angeles, Oct. 6.

Former New York bookmaking king Harry Gross today was sentenced to prison for up to 10 years for slaying his wife's 81-year-old grandfather.

The 46-year-old defendant was convicted of voluntary manslaughter by Superior Judge J. Howard Ziemann after he waived trial on a murder charge.

Gross, sometime head of a 20-million-dollar-a-year bookie ring in the east, submitted his case on the transcript of his preliminary hearing.

After his conviction he waived time for sentencing and was ordered to prison for not less than one year and not more than 10.

He was convicted of shooting and beating Harry Black last June 27 in the victim's apartment. Black died later of his injuries but accused Gross from his hospital bed of beating him when they argued over $2,000 ($270) the former bookie kingpin owed the elderly man.

Gross is awaiting a retrial on charge he killed three Sunset Strip residents, out of $27,000 ($1,000) in an investment scheme. The first trial ended with a deadlocked jury.—UPI.

He Set 'Evil' Example To His Son

Sydney, Oct. 6.

A naval storeman who took his eight-year-old son with him on a shop-lifting expedition was admonished by a Sydney magistrate today.

The magistrate fined Bert Charles Holden, 37, of Granville, A$15 on charges of shoplifting. Refusing his application for a bond, the magistrate, Mr O. S. Lake said:

"I am not impressed. You were setting a very evil example to your own son."

Goods mentioned in the charges included a toy dressing table, a cricket ball, a chess set, a doll and a toy frog.—China Mail Special

Princess Off To Agra

New Delhi, Oct. 6.

Princess Alexandra of Kent left here shortly after noon today for Agra to see the Taj Mahal.

The Princess arrived in Delhi yesterday on an unofficial visit on her way back from Australia and Ceylon.

Soon after arriving, she went sightseeing in the capital.

Princess Alexandra is scheduled to leave Agra later this afternoon for a brief overnight visit to Istanbul, stopping at Tashkent on the way for refueling.

MACMILLAN TO URGE EARLY SUMMIT TALKS

Advantage Gained In K-Eisenhower Meeting

London, Oct. 6.

If the Conservatives win Thursday's general elections, the Prime Minister, Mr Harold Macmillan, may suggest to the Western allies that a summit conference be scheduled for November, informed sources said today.

Mr Macmillan believes that advantage should be taken of the momentum gained by the Khrushchev-Eisenhower talks and that it would be opportune to build rapidly on foundations already laid.

Informed sources believe that such a meeting would be held in Geneva and that the Foreign Ministers of the four powers—Britain, United States, France and the Soviet Union—would have a preliminary meeting to fix the agenda for the summit conference and would present the heads of government with a clear picture of points of agreement and divergence.

NOT GREAT

In government circles, however, it is felt that even in the case of a Conservative Government being returned to power, the chances of a summit meeting in November are not very great.

It is believed that the North Atlantic Treaty allies, jealous of their right to be consulted and to approve common Western policy, would prefer the summit to be held in January, after the annual meeting of the North Atlantic Council had finalised the new Western strategy. Probable subjects for discussion: Disarmament and Berlin.—AFP.

TWO AFRICANS ACQUITTED OF RITUAL MURDER

Lobatsi, Bechuanaland, Oct. 6.

Two Africans were acquitted in the High Court here today of the ritual murder of a nine-year-old girl, alleged to have been killed and mutilated for "medicine" to increase a local well's water supply.

The Crown had submitted that the evidence of accomplices was unanimous that the two accused, Beromakeleng Matlabe and Rankwena Matlabe, were involved in killing a child and had told the accomplices to keep it secret.

But Judge E. V. Elyan said there was no proof of murder. The prosecution case rested on the evidence of accomplices, with no satisfactory independent corroboration.

The evidence of the major Crown witness had showed "noticeable contradictions."—China Mail Special.

Uproar—and Dr. Edith tells Bevan 'Sit down!'

THIS is the third instalment of the story that goes right to the heart of the General Election. It is a detailed account of what happened in April, 1956, when the Labour Shadow Cabinet and National Executive entertained Khrushchev and Bulganin to dinner at the House of Commons. Khrushchev, convinced he was dining with enemies, got angrier and angrier as his speech went on. But worse was to come.

AFTER the angry Mr Khrushchev sat down, the questions came. From Mr Bevan. From Mr Sam Watson, the Durham miners' leader, who is chairman of the party's international sub-committee. Mr Watson had in his pocket a list of about 120 names of Social Democrats who are believed to be behind bars in Iron Curtain countries.

Khrushchev refused point-blank to have anything to do with any list of names. Both Mr Bevan and Mr Watson irritated Mr Khrushchev. They wanted to know who Khrushchev regarded as "enemies of the State."

How could they be defined? What was to stop Russia using its influence with satellite countries to release these prisoners?

Mr Bevan now got the idea that Khrushchev had not properly understood the point. Bevan stood up quietly to clarify the point, but Khrushchev just would not listen to him. Bevan was not taking that treatment.

He was standing in front of his chair, a few yards from Khrushchev on the opposite side of the table. He pushed his chair back and took a couple of steps towards Khrushchev flourishing his finger and saying: "Don't bully. You can't bully me."

Dr Edith Summerskill shrieked to Mr Bevan: "Sit down." Mr Bevan turned to her: "There you go again, Edith, flinching in the face of the enemy."

Overawed

He out-shouted Khrushchev, who had stood up, but at last sat down. And the incident finished with Bevan saying quietly: "You have your interpretation—you must allow us ours."

Mr George Brown and Mr Alfred Robens joined in the appeal for the prisoners. Khrushchev several times jumped to his feet and shouted: "Niet, niet, niet—No, no, no." Amid all the shouts of "Be quiet," and answering shouts of "Nonsense, why should we be quiet?" Mr Gooch said not a word.

The chairman of the occasion appeared to be overawed. And by now there was no retreat, anyway, from a night of calamity.

It was 18 minutes to midnight when the men at the top table pushed back their chairs. Farwells were as distinctive for their brevity as for their absence of cordiality. The handshakes were perfunctory.

But on the way out Mr Khrushchev went through the automatic process of autographing seven menus.

As the cavalcade, with its motorcycle escorts, swept through the gates of Palace Yard, an uproar started back in the Harcourt Room on the treatment of the Men Who Came To Dinner.

True, Mr Gaiskill and Mr Alfred Robens, potential Foreign Secretary, had been informally invited to Russia. And Mr Gaiskill was to make good use of the invitation later.

The morning after at No. 10: Sir Anthony restores the calm.

There had been one wan smile in the later stages of the disaster.

Khrushchev, with a few drops of brandy left in his glass, said: "Before I drink the remains of the brandy..."

The head waiter hurried round to him with a bottle, but Khrushchev said: "No, no, I mean the remains of the brandy in my glass. Not the remains of the brandy in the room."

A rage

Now it was the morning after. The air was black with political harrow. Khrushchev, still in a towering rage with the Socialists, arrived with Bulganin at Downing Street to resume talks with Sir Anthony Eden.

At once he started to speak of the insults he had received at the dinner. He spoke with such vehemence that some present feared that this was the end of the talks, the end of the visit.

Khrushchev was in full flight. He granted about "harvest," which is "harvesting," he said that it was the Labour Party he would be a Tory if he came to live here.

He thanked his stars that he did not have to deal with the Socialists but with his friends the Tories.

tells Bevan 'Sit down!'

Sir Anthony seized this opportunity to turn away wrath. Skillfully he got the Russians to calm down and sit down. The talks went on. But Khrushchev was still boiling. He and Bulganin went on to Westminster to lunch with 40 MPs in the private residence of Mr Speaker. Opposition leaders were present.

Growl

Lunch over, Bulganin was making his usual pleasant, witty "thank you" speech; was saying that they would like to come again, when Khrushchev growled: "And I hope the Labour Party will be more amiable next time."

There was silence. Hesitant laughter. Then most of the 40 hosts grinned. And Khrushchev's moon face showed a smile in acknowledgment.

But Khrushchev was still boiling. The party moved into the Speaker's drawing room with the world boss of Communism still muttering about "harvest."

Mr George Brown, the man who had shouted "May God forgive you," went up to Khrushchev.

He said he was going out of London and so would not be able to attend the Russians' party at Claridge's that night.

He said he was sorry he would not be seeing them again. He would like to take that opportunity of saying goodbye.

He held out his hand. Khrushchev flushed and shouted: "Niet, niet, niet." Mr Brown's hand dropped to his side.

Khrushchev bore down on a group of Labour leaders. Again he talked of "harvest." Again he said it was impossible to deal with the Socialists; again he said that, given the choice, he would be a Tory.

All this was said with the hearing of Ministers who did their best to mask their satisfaction. Thus on Wednesday morning, with tensions rising in the party, the National Executive met in gloom. The repercussions were plain and threefold, in this order of immediacy:

1—Because Right-wing Brown had come out of it badly and left-wing Bevan rather well, the internal balance of the party had shifted. For these two were the strongest opponents in the coming struggle for the treasurership.

2—Because no Socialist could any longer claim, as the party did in the 1945 election, that "Left can best speak to Left," the party's chances at the next election might well be endangered.

3—Because Khrushchev was unforgiving, the entire new line of world Communism—to co-exist with and co-operate with Socialist Parties—was probably already in reverse to some distant point of no return. Here the importance lay in Europe rather than in Britain.

It was the group which had sat near Mr George Brown—in particular Dr Edith Summerskill and union leader Jack Copper—who raised the matter of their embarrassment. They were angry with Mr Brown—and yet they could not push matters too far. Both were anti-Bevanite.

Mr Cooper had already put in such a strong report to the chiefs of the General Council of the Communist Party that it was now doubtful if their 600,000 votes would go for Mr Brown as treasurer.

And Mr Sam Watson who, as a miners' leader, had always done his best to keep another 600,000 votes from Mr Bevan, was thinking again.

For Mr Bevan had strongly championed Mr Watson at the dinner on the issue dear to him as chairman of the party's international sub-committee: that issue of the imprisoned Social Democrats.

Spur

Mr Bevan as treasurer? That alone was a spur to further action. The implications of electoral defeat and world-wide Communist hostility, as yet undiscussed, were none the less spurs to action.

There was perhaps just one way out of all the perplexities—and the worried executive took it.

A deputation of Mr Hugh Gaiskill, the leader, Mr James Griffiths, the deputy leader, Mr Edwin Gooch, the chairman, and Mr Morgan Phillips, the secretary, would call on the Russians.

There was to be no apology for raising the issue of prisoners, but there would be a definite assurance of good will.

If harmony could be restored before Khrushchev and Bulganin left the country several cats would be back in their bags. It was the only hope.

Trip to Venus is tested

ANY space-ship bound for Venus is going to get a jolly hot—about 50 per cent hotter than one coming back through Earth's atmosphere.

Such are the findings of American scientists using a 40ft.-long shock-tube to test the effect of friction heat on space vehicles.

Into the tube they pumped the gases which are believed to make up Venus's atmosphere. At one end they put a nose-cone to represent a space-ship. At the other they exploded a mixture of oxygen, hydrogen and helium.

A gentle landing

The shock-wave flashed down the tube in a 10-1000th of a second and struck a heat gauge in the nose-cone. The heat recorded was that which a space-ship would suffer at 20,000 miles an hour.

Why will it get so hot near Venus? Because the atmosphere of that planet, mostly carbon dioxide, is heavier than ours. The friction-heat as you pass through it is, therefore, greater.

Space fiction? Not when the Americans plan a gentle landing on Venus with a rocket for 1964.

The men to beat the challenge of space...

by PETER FAIRLEY

THERE was a knock. The door of the research laboratory in the Sheffield steelworks opened to show a young RAF officer. He clutched a briefcase which bulged. "I have a real problem," he said.

Minutes later the young officer was deep in an explanation that work on his top-secret turbo-jet air engine had come to a full stop because he could not find a metal capable of standing up to the gruelling temperatures and stresses it would meet.

The steelmen smiled. "I think we might have just the thing," they said. And they had.

The RAF officer became Sir Frank Whittle. His jet engine became world-famous. But the policy of the Sheffield scientists is the same as it was in those pre-war days: "Get one jump ahead of the need."

They were able to offer Whittle a stainless steel which they had developed, not for a specific task, but against the day when SOMEONE would need a material tough enough to stand up to conditions well beyond any then experienced.

The boffins keep it quiet

Today every new thing that flies, or rockets through space, depends on stainless steel. The term "stainless" does not mean it will not stain. It means that it has qualities to resist corrosion right the way through, instead of just on a "plated" surface such as chrome. Today the heat and strains which such steel has to undergo are far greater than those faced by Whittle. Security regulations make it hard to say to what extent the steel "boffins" are still able to live up to their motto.

But the nose of the Black Knight rocket, shown at the Farnborough Air Show, gives a clue.

Fired from the Australian desert, Black Knight has been up 500 miles—the highest any British-made object has ever been hurled. The recovered nose cone showed slight "blunting." It had a faint heat and shock pattern on one side.

It came back. Virtually intact.

I asked Dr. William Hilton, 47-year-old leader of the team of British pressing on with plans for the Flying Pyramid spaceship, whether he thought stainless steel today are good enough to use in such a venture.

The problem

Dr Hilton reckons his Pyramid would be cooked at a temperature between 800 and 1,000 degrees Centigrade as it re-enters Earth's atmosphere. It would be travelling at around 20,400 feet per second.

"I think," he said, "that our steels are marginally good, but we could do with any improvements they can make."

"Black Knight's nose cone must have travelled at around 12,000 feet per second, and only underwent about a quarter of the heat in outer space which the Pyramid would have to stand. But the cone was in encouragingly good shape."

Nobody will tell you the type of steel used in Black Knight. But the steelmen WILL tell you about two new steels they have produced which can "certainly withstand temperatures of 500 degrees C."

These are known as F.V.520 and F.V.560. Both combine the heat-resisting qualities of stainless steel with the lightness of aluminium alloy. Ideal materials for the skins of hypersonic airplanes and space rockets. Ideal, too, for the combustion chambers of jet and rocket motors.

F.V.520 will be used in the Bristol "all-stainless-steel" experimental airplane, the P.188 due to fly early next year.

Basically, the work of a research scientist on new steels is a matter of adding or subtracting a little of this or that alloy. But the problem is this. By putting in too much "toughener" alloy, you usually make the steel less resistant to corrosion. These two latest examples are a subtle blend of steel, chromium (resists the heat), nickel (resists the stress) and three fancy-sounding metals, vanadium, molybdenum and niobium.

The scientists have also done something new, for a steel with these properties—made it easy to weld. And non-magnetic. Thus it can be used for space instruments, such as gyroscopes, as well as the outer skin of a vehicle.

But there is a big difference between theoretically perfect blends and practice. When the Atomic Energy Authority called for better materials to "can" uranium fuel elements, the steelmakers knew an alloy called boron would be ideal. In theory by adding boron a super-steel to survive the heat

The Black Knight—The steel used in it remains a secret

in atomic reactors could be made. But until 1957 scientists had only been able to use tiny amounts of boron without ruining the other properties needed for the "cans."

Then a Sheffield firm invented a new secret technique of blending boron with steel. Britain won an international race.

One such technique, which has opened doors into many industries besides the space-race, is called centrifuging.

Centrifuging is done by pouring the liquid metal into a mould, spinning at high speed. The metal is flung against the edges of the mould and gradually built up INWARDS until it has set hard. The casting can weigh anything up to four tons. The method ensures that the steel is uniformly strong all the way through and in all directions, highly clean and has no "bubbles."

Each casting is then tested at length for any porous areas or cracks. Nowadays, X-rays, atomic rays or ultra-sonic signals are beamed through the metal to check for hidden defects. In tests on the new F.V.520 steel, cylinders of it were sunk in a chemical solution for a whole year. The steel was "practically unaffected" by corrosion. One older steel with similar properties was badly corroded within a month. Another within six months.

A by-word

The research done by British steel scientists is painstaking and—what has become a byword for Sheffield—of the "finest quality." At present, Black Knight and the Blue Streak Rocket (not due to be fired until 1961) are the only official British candidates for a look at outer space.

It may be many moon-shots before these steelmakers hear another knock on the door like Whittle's. Today they are not allowed to say what their answer will be.

But their smiling refusal has a confident air.

NO WONDER THESE MARRIAGES ARE A WONDERFUL SUCCESS

When a secretary marries her boss...

A husband and wife team who were once a boss and secretary team are revealed to have made a fortune. Is a business marriage a pointer to success?

JUST about now the new girl in the office will be hearing "Take a letter, Miss Smith" for the first time. For the secretarial colleges and the schools have discharged a fresh crop of newly trained secretaries.

What can Miss Smith, the golden girl of industry, look forward to? She can rise to the plum post of confidential secretary to the managing-director. And in many a case I confidently bet that she ends up by marrying the boss.

by ANNE de COURCY

Together

Now, working together, they have built up their business until it is worth £585,000.

Then there is Lady Cunningham, who as Miss Edith Smith married her boss Sir Graham last November, after working as his secretary for 10 years.

"I told my staff," said Sir Graham, "that Lady Cunningham would be staying on as my secretary afterwards." Because, as Sir Graham added, "I'm very trying in the office."

Another industrialist who married his secretary is Mr. Frank Taylor. Thirty-eight years ago he started with £30 of his own. Now he heads one of Britain's biggest building and civil engineering contractors.

'Preposterous'

Three years ago Colonel James Horlick—no prizes for guessing his business—married Miss Joan MacGill, his secretary of eight years' standing. And Sir Miles Thomas also chose a secretary—Lady Thomas.

Outstanding

But why these marriages are so successful—why a good secretary makes a good wife, why the boss makes a good husband?

At first glance I find it easier to spot the advantages from the boss's side. If, after several years' close but impersonal companionship, he suddenly finds himself married, there are plenty of reasons why he can judge that Miss Smith will make a good wife.

Intense personal loyalty—just as important in a wife—as one

"This is also going to be a bedroom," he said. It was a fine big room. Only there were no windows.

In fact none of the rooms in Blinky's house had windows. They were all lit up with firefly lamps. Blinky took Knarf and Hanid to the third room.

"This is another bedroom," he said. The whole five new rooms which Blinky had just added to his house were all bedrooms.

"They're wonderful rooms," Hanid said to Blinky later when "I should have told you," he said. "Now, Winky, Blinky, Twinky, Dinky and Krinky are my grandchildren. I'm expecting them here in a day or two. They're going to spend the summer with me and each one of them has his own room."

Only One Needed

"How many bedrooms can one person sleep in?" asked Knarf.

"All you need is one," Blinky smiled.

"I didn't make the new bedrooms for myself," he said. "I'm expecting company."

"Who's coming?" asked Knarf.

Blinky smiled as he answered: "Winky is coming. Blinky is coming. Twinky is coming. And so are Dinky and Krinky."

Knarf and Hanid were puzzled. But Blinky Mole burst out laughing.

On the theory that half a loaf is a lot better than none, South did manage to make his spade game. East's jack of hearts forced South's ace. The play continued with a diamond to the king, a successful club finesse, two more diamond tricks with a club discard from dummy and a heart to the king.

This gave South six tricks in and he played dummy's queen of hearts. East ruffed and South overruffed for trick seven. The ace of clubs was trick eight and a third club lead produced a ninth trick with dummy's ten of spades since East had to follow. The ace of trumps was still there for trick 10.

RECIPE

CASSEROLE OF PORK

I MADE this lovely family dish last night. There is enough for four to five servings and it is ideal for a cool evening.

Cut 1½ lb. neck or shoulder of lean pork into 2 to 3oz. pieces, season them with pepper and salt and fry them all over in the fat trimmed from the meat until a warm gold. Place them in a casserole with a little water, cover and simmer gently while preparing the remainder of the dish.

Cut a head of cleaned celery into 1½ in. slices and add them to the casserole. In the same frying-pan, cook 12 to 14 little hard onions and ¼ lb. carrots, cut in rings, to colour them a little. Add them to the casserole.

Pour off most of the fat from the pan, work 1 to 1½oz. flour into the residue, then stir in ¼ pint hot water. Add a good pinch of thyme, a bay leaf and several parsley stalks. Season to taste, simmer for 15 minutes, then pour the sauce into the casserole. Taste and season further, if necessary.

If the liquid has evaporated too much, add a little boiling water. Cover and cook for 1½ to 1¾ hours at 350 to 375 degrees Fahr. or gas mark 4 to 5. Sprinkle a good tablespoon or more of chopped parsley on top and serve with plainly boiled potatoes.

It is worth while adding a small measure of dry vermouth or white wine to the sauce.

WIN OVER DODGERS

Los Angeles, Oct. 6.

The Chicago White Sox scored a fourth inning run today and made it stand up all the way to keep their World Series hopes alive with a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers before an all-time record crowd of 92,706.

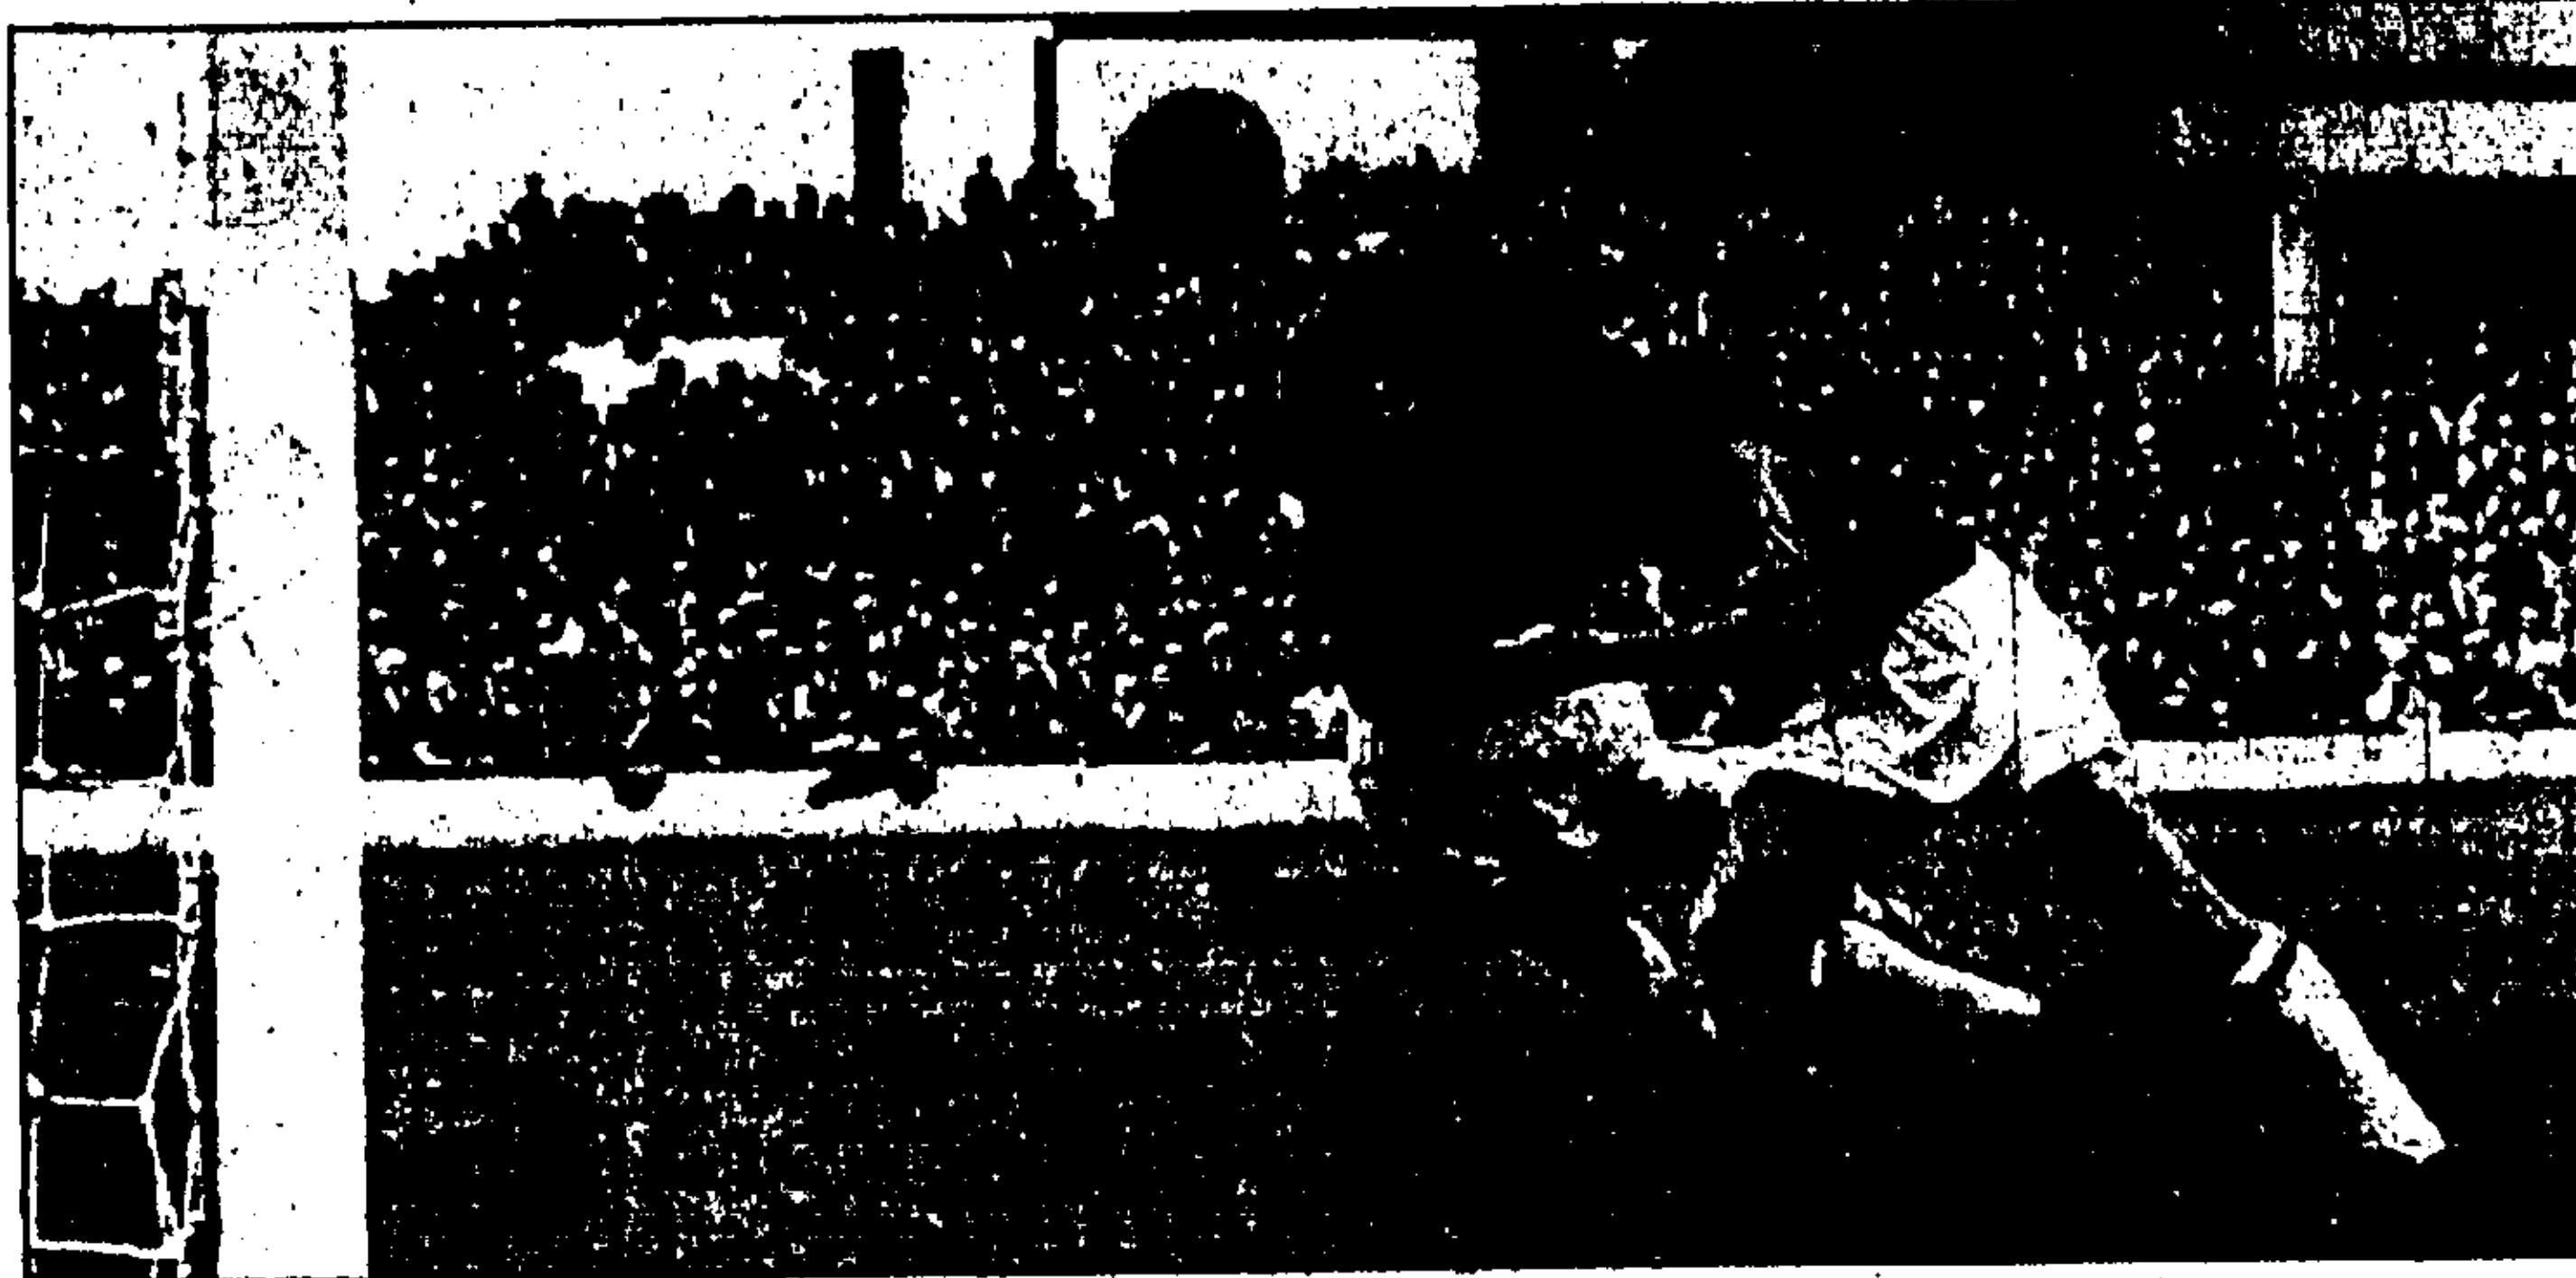

It was a spectacular ball game before the biggest crowd ever to see a Series game and Bob Shaw, with relief help from Billy Pierce and big Dick Donovan, was credited with the shutout.

Shaw hurled brilliant ball until the eighth inning when it looked as though the never-say-die Dodgers were going to pull another one out of the fire. Shaw had been hurling on the edge he gained in the fourth inning when Nellie Fox singled, went to third on Jim Landis' single and scored as Sherman Lollar hit into a double play.

That turned out to be enough, but the White Sox hopes looked black in the eighth inning when Landis lost Wally Moon's line drive to centre field and it fell in front of him for a single.

It was one of the most tumultuous innings in Series history, and it sent the Series back to Chicago for the sixth game on Thursday.—UPI.

HEADING FOR A GOAL

It looks as if Woosnam, West Ham's inside-right is already through, heading for the goal but Potter the West Bromwich goalkeeper just manages to punch the ball away from him for a corner. ## CLEVER CHINESE SCORE EASY WIN IN VICTORY SHIELD MATCH

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

The Combined Chinese scored a decisive 5-1 victory over the Combined Services in the postponed Victory Shield match played under floodlights at the Hongkong Football Club Stadium last night.

It was a disappointingly one-sided game, for the Services boys were never able to match the Chinese in individual skill or combined effort.

The latter had of course the great advantage of having played together many times and it was only the wholehearted defensive work of big "Ginger" Woodcock that kept the eager locals within fair and reasonable bounds.

Never In Control

Yiu Cheuk-yin took the opportunity to remind all and sundry that he is still a superb ball worker; one who can reduce a defence to panic and one who can still make goalscoring easy for his mates.

Little Wong Chi-keung also struck good form and he gave soldier Goodier a hectic evening.

The Services wing-halves were never in control of their own territory and the full-backs filtered too often under pressure. Goalkeeper Newbiggin hardly lived up to his reputation but so poor was the covering in front of him—Woodcock accepted—it would be unfair to judge him on this display.

The Chinese lost no time in turning their superiority into goals and with only 13 minutes gone Leung Wai-hung and Chan Fui-hung had both found the net.

Apart from feeling raids which came to little it was pretty much one-way traffic and it was no surprise when Lo Kwok-lai made the most of loose defensive work by the Services to increase the Chinese lead to three goals.

Lo demonstrated his goal scoring ability again just before the interval and the Chinese boys reached the halfway stage with a comfortable 4-0 lead.

Eased Off

The local boys continued to dominate play in the second half and Leung Wai-hung finished off some excellent combined forward play by beating Newbiggin again to give his side a nap hand.

The Chinese eased off a bit after this and the Services had a slightly bigger share of the play without ever suggesting that they were good enough to cause the opposition any real worry.

Watson was always trying to put a better face on things but even such an accomplished player as the flying alarm found it difficult to break down the compact Chinese defence on his own, although it should be said he had a jolly good try.

Consolation Goal

It was the right wing's persistence that led eventually to his side getting a consolation goal. He led one of the Services' few combined movements and from the resultant corner-kick Wang banged the ball into the net.

In spite of this goal the Chinese were always in command and it seemed they could have exerted greater pressure on the overworked Combined Services defence had it been necessary in racing pastimes they won "looking round" and their thoroughbred football made the opposition appear quite ordinary.

This was a well deserved "Victory Shield" victory for the Chinese.

PICKWORTH UNABLE 'TO TURN AMATEUR'

Melbourne, Oct. 6. Australian professional golf champion and four times National open champion, Ossie Pickworth, has been informed by St Andrews that his application for reinstatement to amateur status has been refused.

A letter Pickworth received here today from the Victorian Golf Association said that Pickworth's request had been submitted to the Royal and Ancient St Andrews Golf Club and had been rejected.

The Victorian Club reached a similar decision.

Professionals must wait at least two years under golfing regulations before they can be reinstated as amateurs but normally any professional of more than five years' standing is not reinstated, a club official said.—China Mail Special.

THREE RUGBY MATCHES TO BE PLAYED OFF TODAY

By PAK LO

There are three rugby matches scheduled for this afternoon; all of them at Boundary Street.

At 3.15 p.m. on the Army ground the RASC clashes with 49 Field Regiment, and following this at 4.30 p.m. on the same ground, two of Saturday's teams meet. These are 32nd Medium and the Sappers, and of the pair the Sappers were victorious in their Saturday encounter with the RAF, while the 32nd Medium went down to Club "A".

On the Police ground in Boundary Street at 3.15 p.m. the Police are at home to the 1st Lanes who beat Club "B" on Saturday.

Normally these games would be scheduled for Saturday, but few of the players will be available on that date. There will be no games on October 10 and the next fixtures will be on Wednesday the 14th, again at Boundary Street.

Friendly Game

Incidentally players and spectators will note that there are no fixtures arranged for the Club ground for this month as the ground is being used for the "Holiday on Ice" show.

On Monday evening the two RAF teams met in a friendly trial match, and Kni Tak left the field the victors by eight points (one goal one try) to three points (one try).

It is reported that Little Sai Wan did not come up to expectations, but overall the RAF are quietly confident that they will produce a good XV for the Pentagonal this year.

Morecambe Not Running In Cesarewitch

London, Oct. 6. French Buge, a 33 to one chance in last night's callover, will not run in the Cesarewitch on October 14 unless there is heavy rain to ease the going.

Winter Winton, an outsider, will not run in the race, his trainer said today.

Mr D. Bullock's Morecambe, who won the Cesarewitch last year, will not run in the race on October 14, because hard going has held up his preparation. The six-year-old was quoted at 20 to 1 last night in the Victoria Club callover. He had been favourite in the first ante-post lists.—Reuter.

Johannson Leaves For Film Debut

New York, Oct. 6. Ingemar Johannson, world heavyweight boxing champion, left New York International Airport today for Los Angeles to make his professional debut as an actor in a movie called "All The Young Men."

Dressed in a charcoal grey double-breasted suit, the champion looked more like a prosperous young businessman than a boxer and actor.

NOT NERVOUS

He said that he was not nervous and explained that "I did a little high school dramatics and I also appeared in a Swedish movie as myself—a boxer—but this is my first professional debut as an actor."

He will appear in the role of a Swedish machine-gunner in the Swedish U.N. forces in Korea assigned to an advance platoon of Marines.

He said he expects that his work in the film will take about a month and that he does not know how long he will remain in the United States, explaining he may have some more TV commitments.

SINGING DEBUT

He made his singing debut recently in the Danish Shore show and when asked if he planned a career as an entertainer when he retires, he replied "I haven't thought about retirement—that would be a long time, and then maybe I will think about it."—A.P.

SPORTS PICTORIAL

The 1959-1960 local racing opened last Saturday with outsiders taking a major share of the honours. Photo above shows one of the outsiders, Million Dollar (No. 10), ridden by H. K. Chuang, winning the Salisbury Handicap — a race for Class 8 ponies over the distance of one mile 171 yards. Million Dollar paid $173.70 for a win, the second highest dividend of the day. Second, one and half lengths behind is Splendid (No. 8) the second favourite in the event.

Another feature of Saturday's meeting was the unqualified success of the "Woods" starting gate, used in Hongkong for the first time. Photo on left shows how evenly the ponies got off at the start in the Cameron Handicap. — China Mail photo.

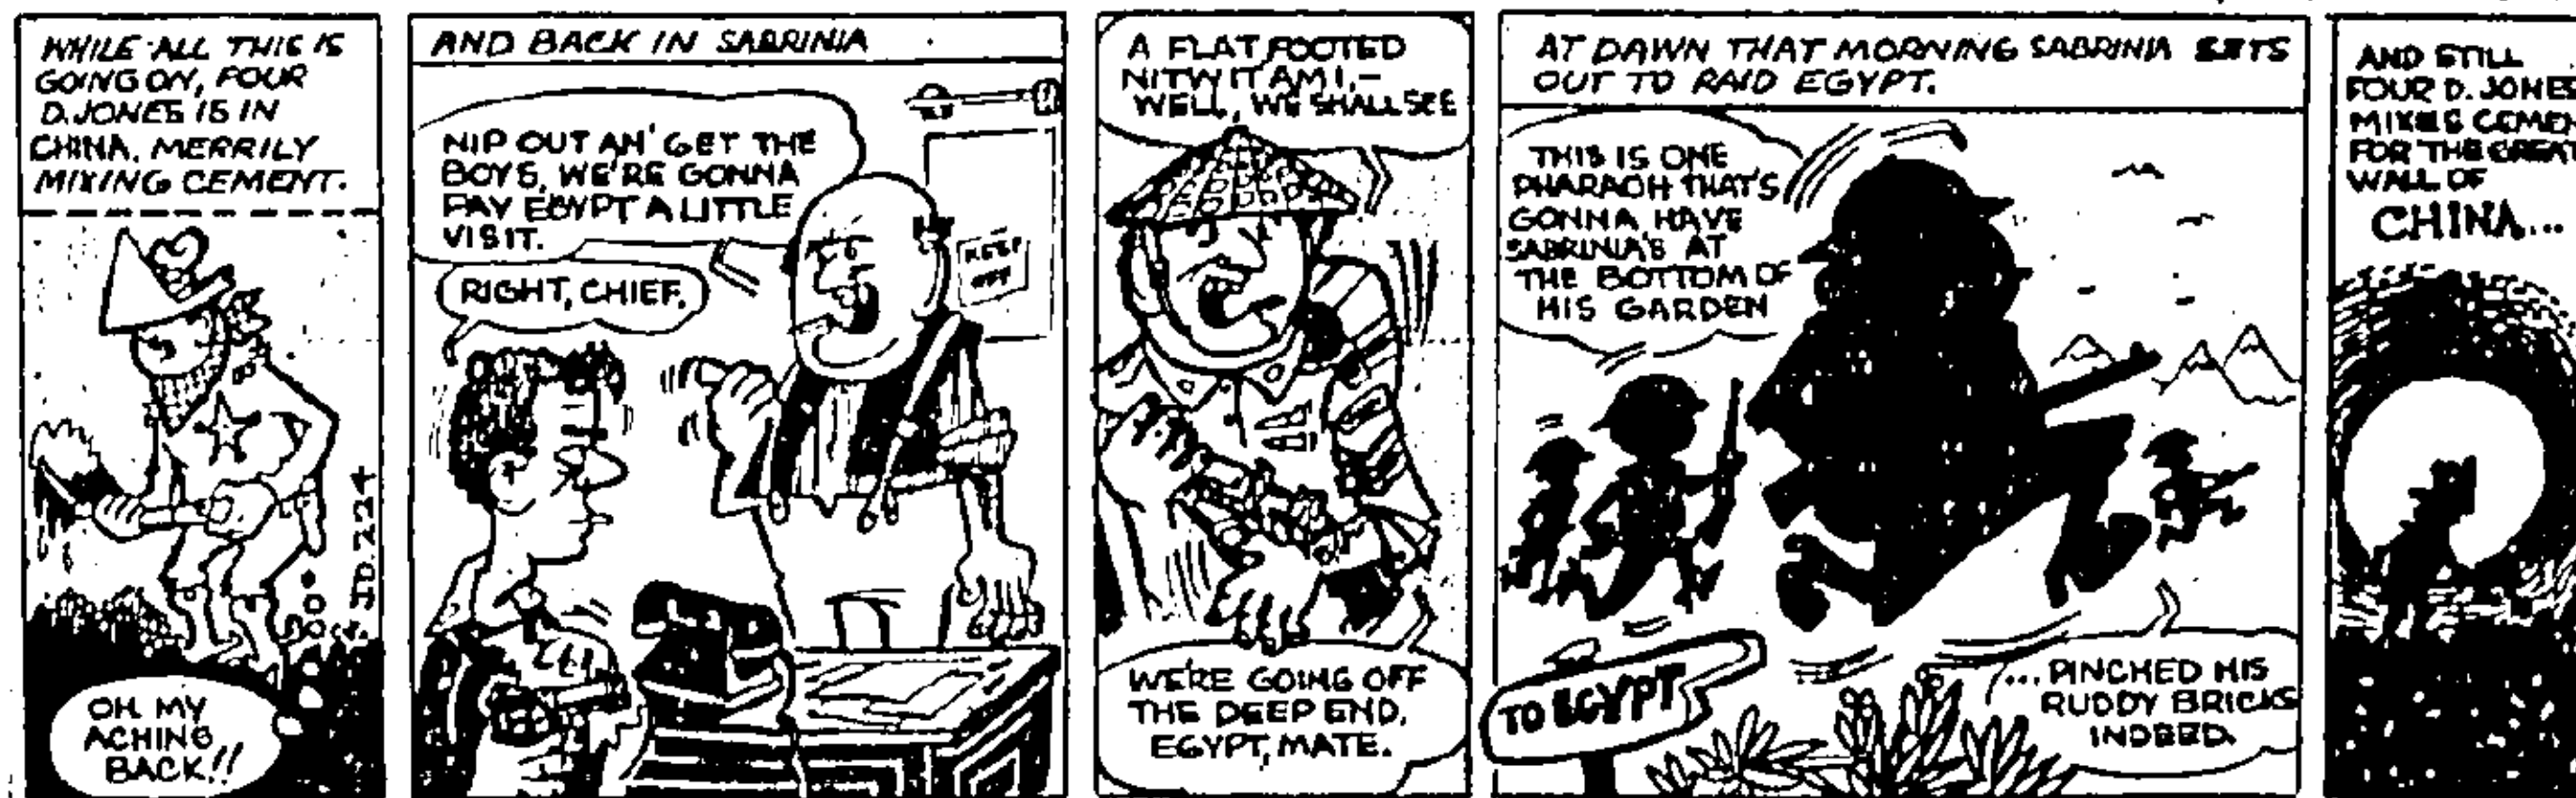

Kitchee, dubbed the glamour boys of this year's first division football league, after their recent 9-0 victory over Sing Tao, failed to live up to the expectations of their supporters last Sunday when they went down to league champions, South China by two goals to one.

Here right-winger Wong Kwok-kee is seen scoring Kitchee's only goal of the match, after receiving a cross pass from left-winger Leung Wai-hung. — China Mail photo.

Britain's great half-miler, Brian Hewson, unbeaten over 800 metres or 880 yards in 14 outings this season, announced last week that he will retire immediately after the Olympic Games in Rome next year. For his double victory in Moscow earlier this year the Russians made him a "Hero of Sport." The crown to his career would be an Olympic gold medal before he is forced to think of his bank balance more than the cheers of the crowd.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

A Cook Who Makes Life Bearable

Frobisher Bay, Canada,
Oct. 6.
Paris-born Mathruin Cuaz is jokingly referred to as the man who makes life bearable at this refuelling stop in the Canadian Arctic.

Cuaz, a diminutive, 35-year-old with flashing dark eyes, is a pastry cook deluxe whose chocolate eclairs and palm leaves are the talk of the Federal Transport Department mess.

When Cuaz serves his French pastries—a rarity at northern camps known for their hardy, simple meals—the men can close their eyes to the bleakness outside and imagine they are in Paris or Montreal.

ARTISTRY

Federal Transport Minister
George Hees has also fallen under the spell of Cuaz's artistry.

When Hees and his wife visited Frobisher Bay recently on an inspection tour, Cuaz baked a 2-foot-square cake in their honour. Hees, who said he had never tasted such pastry, had the cake boxed and flown back to Ottawa.

Cuaz's pastries have been having this effect on Frobisher Bay since he came 1,300 miles north from Montreal a year ago to join the battery of cooks at the mess.

NO SPENDING

Cuaz received his training in his native France, which he left in 1952, and in Montreal and several Quebec resort towns.

What brings a top-flight pastry cook to an isolated northern settlement?

Money, for one thing. Cuaz, who speaks no English, said he makes between $5,000 and $7,000 (£1,800 to £2,500) a year. And there is no place to spend it.

He also likes the fellowship of the north.

When Cuaz flies of it, he says he will go to Florida, almost at the opposite end of the North American continent.

He took out Canadian citizenship last year, and said he doesn't intend to return to France.—UPI.

Herman R. Wischnack started stuffing animals as a hobby five years ago. Now it has become a part-time job and Wischnack has stuffed hundreds of animals from skunks to crocodiles.

THE DEN OF HIS HOME IS FILLED WITH FEROCIOUS ANIMALS

His first effort looked like it had been run over by an automobile. It should have looked like a bluejay.

That was when Herman
R. Wischnack found out there was more to taxidermy than just filling out the skin of an animal or bird.
But Wischnack had been toying with the idea of taxidermy as a hobby for some time, so after the first flop, five years ago, he took a correspondence course in the art of stuffing animals.

Since then, he has preserved hundreds of birds and animals and the den of his home here is filled with ferocious animals.

UNUSUAL

His most interesting specimen is a crocodile caught in the San'a Ana River near his home. The most unusual is a coat mottled, a snout-most little relative of the ani-cater.

According to Wischnack, the art of taxidermy is no more intricate nor difficult to master than learning to be a good fisherman or hunter. And it's the ideal hobby for either one of these sports enthusiasts.

At the start, Wischnack took up taxidermy purely as a hobby, but now it has become a part-time job. His most unusual request came from a customer who wanted him to stuff a skunk and equip it with a perfume atomizer.

Taxidermy as we know it today dates back 350 years to India where birds were skinned,

THE NAVY'S ANSWER TO ELVIS

Tokyo.
The U.S. Army may have its Elvis Presley in Germany,
but look at what the U.S.
navy has come up with in Japan!

Yeoman Third Class Charles Ketchum has just had his first record cut by a Japanese company. The two songs are
"Ore wana-kita!" and "Kuchibue Ga Fukukukai!"

That's right, "Ore wana-kita!"
and "Kuchibue Ga Fukukukai!"
Ketchum, a 22-year-old native of Rushville, Indiana, speaks no Japanese, but when it comes to singing, that's a different matter.
He sings the language like a native.

He was first spotted by Japanese talent scouts when he won first prize in a Radio Tokyo amateur singing contest in December 1957. The contest was open to all foreigners who could sing Japanese songs.

The record was an all Tokyo record shops recently. The lyrics of the song, "Ore wana-kita!" (which means in English,
"I Want To Cry"), were written by Nakano. There is no English translation to the rest of the song. "Kuchibue Ga Fukukukai!" means "Can You Whistle?"

BOBBY SOXERS

Before Ketchum can match the popularity of Presley in Japan, however, the record will have to sell 400,000 to 500,000 copies. That's the equivalent of a million copies of records in the United States.

If Ketchum's record is a hit, he'll get more attention from Japanese bobby soxers than Presley can claim in Germany. Japanese bobby soxers start swooning before a star even appears on the stage. Just the thought of seeing a star ends them.

Ketchum has been an amateur singer since his grade school days in Indiana. He's spent most of his 4-year period in the Navy at Yokosuka Naval Base, near Tokyo.

Rock 'n' roll does not interest
Ketchum, and his Japanese times are love songs. He says he even follows the style of two Japanese popular singers, Frank Maggi and Yulko Ichihara.

"He would like to make a career out of singing, and he thinks Japan is a good place to get started.—UPI.

DOGS are getting so out of hand that an L-test for dog owners has been suggested in Portland.

Would the dog or the owner wear the L? And what about cats? Will there be parking places for animals? Presumably the speed limit for cats and dogs will be rigidly enforced. Then will come a compulsory L-test for pedestrians, with a highway code similar to that of the animals.

THE sausage is the clown touch of its own drollery to anybody who speaks of it. The moment the word is mentioned we seem to be back in the old spoken at a recent conference—

"the sausage has no standard of composition"—invite rowdy comment. Yet the truth of the statement is borne out by the official list of 321 ingredients found in a cross-section of saussages, varying between a brewery horse and an intricate mass of ground cardboard, sawdust and rejected bread. As the sausage, those puny gobbets impaled on nouveau-art toothpicks, they dishonour the great name which they usurp.

Not a moment to lose
A article about the days
"characters" omitted my favourite story of Beethoven Tree. One day he came out of his Majesty's Theatre, hailed a cab with a regal gesture, and thundered to the driver, "Drive like Hell!" "Where to, governor?" "To the Casarillon!"

Anything for a change
MANY years ago I saw "The Blue Angel" in Vienna.
Time passed, and one day I found myself in the same hotel as Marlene Dietrich. I was told she had a suite, and I really appeared. Thinking how sick she must be of signing her autograph I suggested to a friend that we should turn the tables on her and send her a message asking if she would sign our autograph. He thought it was too impudent, but at any rate it would have surprised her with a new sensation.

It Was Another Solemn Anzac Day Here

Sydney (By Airmail).
It is a long time since the city has mourned the death of anyone as it mourned the passing of the leader of the "Rats of Tobruk", Lieut General Sir Leslie Morshead, who died at the weekend, aged 70.

Police estimate that not less than 150,000 people lined the funeral route. Everywhere there were men in uniform or men wearing medals. It was another solemn Anzac Day.
Sir Leslie Morshead was known best as an outstanding soldier in the two world wars but what is not generally known is that he also had a most distinguished business career, rising from a clerk in a shipping office to be General Manager of Orient Steamship Company in Australia, Chairman of the Board of Australia's biggest department store, David Jones
Limited, and President of the Bank of New South Wales.
He was also a member of many other boards but of all his successful business undertakings and his war exploits, he will always be remembered as the Chief Rat of Tobruk.

far more a reality rather than political saying.

Rats in the House are in near-plague numbers, and giving the kitchen workers, housekeepers, and dining-room waitresses a trying time.

Several rats have died in parts of the House, forcing the Attorney-General Sir Garfield Barwick, to leave his rooms for a day while workmen pull up the boards.

Workmen have also had to remove the flooring in the staff dining-room to find the cause of smells.

The Parliamentary Joint House Committee has called in the CSIRO and is considering hiring full-time rat catchers.

The rats are chewing carpets, papers and floorboards, and are concentrating mostly in rooms near the kitchen and dining-rooms.

Way back in 1953 one of the biggest searches in Victoria's history took place in the snow covered Dandenong ranges where a young, 20 years old nurse, Jennifer Laycock was missing.

She was eventually found and rushed to hospital.
A few days later she had her teeth amputated and surgeons have since removed both legs.
Last weekend the "Snow Girl"
Jennifer was married to Mr Hugh Eford, a wool valuer, of Melbourne.

Dr C. E. W. Bean, official Australian Historian for World War I, has retired as chairman of the Australian War Memorial Board after nearly 50 years of service, in compiling war histories and of service to the War Museum.

Dr Bean who will be 80 in November has stipulated that the contents of his own war diary must not be published until 30 years after his death.

He said the reason for this embargo was that some of the contents of his 300 volume diary might be offensive to some living people or needlessly hurt others.

He said: "I wrote everything that came into my head. I visited practically every unit that went into battle to get the real off of Australia's war history. There is any amount of information about people dis-gracing themselves—much of which proved to be false at a later stage."

Dr Bean said his diary was written for his own reference and not for the public. He arrived in Sydney from Denmark to complete details of the essential services—air conditioning, plumbing and drainage.

He said the Opera House's air conditioning plant will be cooled
by sea water from the harbour.
The State Premier (Mr Cahill) declared this week that the building of the Opera House would not be a drain on public funds. He said he hoped the Opera House would be free of debt when it opened in 1962.

Under proposed legislation
the Government, if necessary, would find some of the money from the public purse and later reimburse it from revenue from the special Opera House lotteries.

Mr Cahill said the Government planned to meet the Opera House commitments as they arose.

A cheque for £1,300,000 is due next year on the first stage of the work but the Opera House Fund now had nearly £1 million and he hoped it would have sufficient to meet this commitment.

Mr Stuart informed the council that he recently conducted an extensive survey of helicopter services and organizations while he was in America.

He said it was planned to operate helicopters of the 16 passenger type on regular flights in N.S.W.

He said that a company was at present being formed to be known as "The Helicopter Corporation of Australia Pty. Ltd."
and it would be associated with the Helicopter Corporation of America.

The new organisation plans to operate its services in Sydney and to extend the helicopter flight to other parts.

As a matter of interest a building now being erected at the Quay, the £5 million A.M.P. building plans to establish a helicopter on its roof.

Thirty-six-year-old Howard Read flew back to America last week with plans in his pocket to buy three of Australia's biggest cattle stations.

Howard Read, a Texan rancher, says he has inspected properties in Northern Territory, Queensland, and Western Australia which cover 8 1/2 million acres.

He is one of a 4-man syndicate which hopes to establish cattle raising in a big way in the north.

He said he was perfectly satisfied with what he saw and if his syndicate accepted his recommendations he would return to Australia before Christmas to complete the deal.

American cattle kings are getting a big hold on the industry in Northern Australia.

The site of Sydney's world famous Opera House looks more like a battlefield than the place for a £7 million building, but experts say that out of the chaos an order of a sort is beginning to be organised.

One of the troubles the builders are having is to find just where real land ends and re-claimed land begins.

The area has been filled in many times over the last hundred years but the finding of an old map in the Public Works Department has finally assisted in locating solid land.

Incidentally the Opera House will be the first in the world to have air-conditioning plant cooled by sea water.

Mr Jorgen Mathiesen has arrived in Sydney from Denmark to complete details of the essential services—air conditioning, plumbing and drainage.

He said the Opera House's air
conditioning plant will be cooled

London Closes Firmer

London, Oct. 6. The stock market moved into firmer territory today as new buying interest more than countered profit-taking prior to the elections.

Among industrials, steel showed a majority of small improvements. Oils were mostly steady and metals generally firmer.

Gold stocks were off a bit but gilt-edged securities posted small gains. Dollar stocks were irregular.—UPI.

Kites Knock Out Telephones

Singapore, Oct. 7. Telecommunications men here are having a big headache, now that the kite flying season is here. A spokesman said 117 telephones were knocked out of action by kites in the last week. This was eight cases more than the previous week.

He said because linesmen had to clear faults caused by kite strings, the installation of new telephones had been delayed in several cases. A total of 283 telephones were silenced by kite strings in the three weeks since the season started. —UPI.

LUTHERAN CHRISTMAS FAIR OPENS

The Lutheran World Service Christmas Fair opened this morning in the West Lounge of the YMCA, Salisbury Road, Kowloon will continue the sale of work by refugees until 9 p.m.

Mr. D. Nelson, Assistant Director of the LWS, said that the handicrafts and beautifully embroidered goods displayed on the stalls were made by working groups at Rennie's Mill, the Tao Fong, Shan porcelain painting workshop at Shatin and the Haven of Hope settlement in the New Territories. It had been found that refugees given regular employment and a craft in which to excel, were happier and more fully established than they would be merely by gifts of money then being left to find their own means of earning a livelihood, he said.

Orders for the work done by Hongkong refugees from places abroad increased steadily and now Imperial Preference terms gave good hope of big markets in the United Kingdom.

MANY AGENCIES

In Sweden where many voluntary agencies and church workers organised similar sales of work goods were being shipped constantly from Hongkong and still greater orders were coming because of increased interest in World Refugee Year.

Among the new projects at Rennie's Mill was the rebuilding of 24 old shacks being replaced by stone and asbestos-roofed huts, hygienic and fairly commodious, which cost $1,000 each. Occupants were being given the opportunity of repayment for the huts by making goods instead of cash, a scheme successfully developed with previous good results.

GOOD QUALITY

Mr. Nelson thanked Mr. K. Thornton, Secretary of the YMCA and the workers who were giving assistance.

Early shoppers were impressed by the excellent quality and reasonable prices of the goods displayed which included delicately painted porcelain, beautifully-dressed dolls, fine linens, beadwork, woollens and rattanware.

Germany's Gift Of Drugs To HK

At a brief ceremony held in the German Consulate-General this morning, the Consul-General, Dr. Otto Brautigam, on behalf of the German pharmaceutical industry, handed over to the Hongkong Government drugs to the approximate value of $10,000.

These drugs are a contribution by the German industry to Hongkong in the World Refugee Year.

They were accepted by the Director of Medical and Health Services, Dr. D. J. M. Macdonald, on behalf of the Hongkong Government.

Airline To Double Services To Hongkong

Before leaving this morning to attend the forthcoming IATA Conference in Tokyo, Swissair's President, Dr. Walter Berchtold, announced that the airline's passenger services to Hongkong will be doubled next year.

Dr. Berchtold also stated that with the coming of the pure jet Concorde Coronado airliner, Swissair would further increase its capacity.

On the question of cheaper air travel, he said: "For the promotion of tourism in the Far East, Swissair is in favour of lower rates."

REALISTIC

Dr. Berchtold congratulated Government on its realistic plan for the implementation and development of the Kai Tak international air terminal.

"Your authorities are doing a magnificent job. The new runway and its approaches are a big improvement and the cutting down of obstructing hills has greatly facilitated landings and take-offs."

"The temporary terminal buildings should serve you well until the ultimate terminal structure is constructed."

Man Wounded

A Chinese man sustained injuries at about 8.30 p.m. yesterday when he was assaulted by another man with a fruit knife on the reclamation area in Connaught Road Central.

The injured man is being treated in Queen Mary Hospital. A man has been arrested by the Police for questioning.

Pleaded Guilty To Advertising Charges, But Dismissed

Central Magistrate Mr. I. T. Morris this morning dismissed two men who pleaded guilty to inserting advertisements in a newspaper, purporting to show that a product known as "Apiderm" was efficacious in treating human cancer.

The defendants were D. Y. Lee and Y. D. Yoo, co-partners of the Allied Advertising Agency situated at 610 Man Yee Building.

Superintendent J. W. Browett, who prosecuted, said that the defendants had inserted the advertisements on behalf of the agents of the product — Dennis and Co., Ltd., which appeared in the July 20 and July 21 editions of the South China Morning Post.

Co-operated

Superintendent Browett said that the defendants had merely handled the advertisement on behalf of the agents, who had already been dealt with, and gave directions to the Morning Post, who had also been dealt with.

He also said both defendants had co-operated with the police and given them every assistance in inquiries into the case and that they had apologised for having broken the law.

$7 Million Flats Plan For Mid-Level District

Estoril is seen at the right and the two new blocks on the left. Garden Road will run behind them towards Magazine Gap Road.

By A China Mail Reporter

The foundation work of a new $7 million building scheme at the top of Garden Road was begun recently.

The scheme is the second phase of the New Estate company's plan to raise two more 11-storey blocks next to Estoril Court.

The architect, Mr. Wong Hong-yuen said, this morning that the blocks are expected to be completed at the end of October or beginning of November next year. Mr. Wong explained that the two new blocks, at present designated "B" and "C", will be much different from the present Estoril Court.

Many people in that building had complained about the lack of space available for drying clothes. This has been taken care of in the new buildings.

A special drying vault has been designed which passes right down the centre of the wings at each end of the buildings. They are spacious and airy, giving plenty of room for the residents of each floor. In all there will be a total of 70 flats. "B" block, which is slightly larger, will cost $4,000,000, and "C" block $3,000,000.

Mr. Wong said that he has introduced a new type of aluminium balustrade and aluminium sliding doors for the verandahs. These he believes will be more practical as they do not need repainting from year to year. The 80,000 square-foot lot, owned by a syndicate of four, is valued at between $30-$40 per square foot. The building contractors are the Hsin Heng Co.

SHIP'S PURSER TELLS SUPREME COURT ABOUT THE 'PIGGIES'

A ship's purser told the Supreme Court this morning that illegal immigrants were classified as "boars", "pigs" and "piggies" and that the charges were fixed at $5,000 for a pig, $3,000 for a boar and $2,500 for a piggie.

Fung Hartland also told the court the captain, chief officer and chief engineer of the m.v. Sonia were arrested in September, 1956, and the ship was subsequently detained in Bangkok for two years.

Fung and seven other former crew members claimed $32,000 in unpaid wages plus air fare from Bangkok to Hongkong against the ship and its owner, Mr. Henrique Leitao.

Leitao counterclaimed for $92,000 which he alleged he lost through not being able to charter the ship while it was under arrest.

Leitao claimed the crew were not entitled to the money because they had been illegally smuggling immigrants to Bangkok.

Cross-examined by Mr. Richard Winter (for Leitao), Fung said the captain had been arrested and detained by Bangkok police a few days after the ship docked in Bangkok in September, 1956.

understood that the charges for these immigrants were: $3,000 for a "boar", $5,000 for a "pig" and $2,500 for a "piggie."

Witness denied that he was among the crew detained by the Thai authorities.

The hearing, before Mr. Justice A. D. Scholes, is continuing.

Mr. S. V. Gittins is representing the plaintiffs, The Man-dan, Wong Chang, Chin Kwai, Chan Wing-yuen, Wong Chui, Wu Bing-chon, Man Tim, and Fung.

Imprisoned

On the same day the chief officer and chief engineer had been arrested.

The chief officer had been imprisoned for 90 days, he said. Fung admitted the officers were arrested over the illegal smuggling of immigrants to Bangkok.

Mr. Winter: Is that why the Sonia was detained in Bangkok?

Fung: No. Fung admitted that in a letter dated September 14 he had said the crew had confessed to the smuggling so the ship would be released.

"But I did not confess, nor did I sign any confession," said Fung.

He said he had called on Leitao when he returned to Hongkong in 1957 and had told him what had happened. But he denied telling him he had signed a confession.

Mr. Winter: "Why did not the ship sail?"

Fung: "It could not sail in the absence of the captain and the officers."

Fung said the captain was detained by Thai police for 84 days.

The Habit

"I understand this is the habit of Thai authorities," he said. "They detain people for 84 days of suspicion before preferring charges."

Fung later said that the captain had confessed to Thai police to carrying illegal immigrants.

Witness was then referred to a letter, which he admitted having written in 1956 reporting on the trip.

He said the word "piggie" in the letter referred to illegal immigrants to Thailand, and he

THE SCM Post leader said Government would be wiser to concentrate on primary education, leaving secondary education to private or semi-private enterprise, and instead supplying vocational training.

Mr. J. Owen Hughes in the Budget debate said that the Colony's next for "Masters of Craft" is greater at present than for masters of the Arts and Sciences.

"That may be disputed, but the need is at least as great. Further, the thousands of boys infesting the streets, uneducated and unemployed, wasting their lives, is still a reproach," added the leading article.

A church of unusual design for Hongkong is to be built at Causeway Bay. It is to replace the present St. Mary's Church of England opposite the French hospital.

The design is Chinese, a striking departure from orthodox Anglican architecture, but in keeping with the idea of a distinct Chinese Church.

The architects are Messrs Chau and Lee. It is estimated to cost $50,000.

The Rector of St. Mary's is the Rev. Lee Kau-yan.

IN the Personal column appeared the following notice: Grateful thanks are expressed by Mr. S. K. Lee to three unknown gentlemen who saved him from drowning at Shek O Beach on September 3. In the excitement of the time Mr. Lee did not have the opportunity of enquiring their names. He would be pleased if they would communicate with him.

Turning out for the Hongkong Club trial rugby team were Mr. W. Turner and W. C. G. Knowles.

ON October 18 the Governor, Sir William Peel, will lay the foundation stone of the new headquarters of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation.
